THE SENSATION IN THE PASHION-ABLE WORLD OF LONDON.

In the London Times of July 3d, and not 4th as a contemporary has it, there was a curious article, from which it was evident all London was in a fever at the daily appearance of a very dashing and beautiful woman in Hyde Park, who, forsaking the "Ladies' Mile" along the Serpentine, preferred exhibiting her elegant turn-out and her more elegant self along the Kensington Road, the Knight's Bridge Barracks, the Albert Gate and Apsley House. The following is the article alluded to: " ANOMYMA.

"To the Editor of the Times :

rigid etiquette of the Russian Court, it is not usual for the Emperor to grant an interview until the lapse of some time after the arrival of a Minister, but in this case an audience was almost immediately granted, and the reception made the more cordial by the earnest solicitude with which the Emperor inquired concerning the condition of the American people, their resources, numerical power, intelligence, wealth, and progress. "Sir : Early in the season of 1861, a young lady, whom I must call Anonyma, for I have never been able to learn her name, made her appearance in Hyde Park. She was a charming creature, beautifully dressed, and she drove with ease and spirit two of the handsomest brown ponies eyes ever beheld. Nobody in society had seen her before;

nobody in society knew her name, or to whom she belonged; but there she was, prettier, better dressed and sitting more gracefully in her carriage than any of the fine ladies who envied her her looks, her skill, or her equipage. "A good many young gentlemen seemed to-be acquainted with her; but their recognition was generally limited to a respectful bow as she passed by, or to a few friendly words slily interchanged on the step of her pony carriage when she drew up in some remote corner of

"Anonyma seemed at first to be rather a shy damsel. She is somewhat bolder now. Last year she avoided crowds, and affected unfrequented roads, where she could more freely exhibit her ponies' marvellous action, and talk to her male acquaintances with becoming privacy. When all the fashionable world were sauntering on foot, on horseback, and in carriages along the Ladies' Mile by the side of the Serpentine, Anonyma used to betake hereself to the deserted thoroughfare leading from Apsley House to Kensington.

But, as the fame of her beauty and her equipage spread, this privacy became impossible to her. The fashionable world eagerly migrated in search of her from the Ladies' Mile to the Kensington road. The highest ladies in the land enlisted themselves as her disciples. Driving became the rage. Three, four, five, six hundred guineas were freely given for pairs of ponies, on the simple condi-tion that they should be as handsome as Anonyma's, that they should show as much breeding as Anenyma's, that they should step as high as Anonyma's. If she wore a porkpie hat, they wore porkpie hats; if her paletot was made by Poole, their paletots were made by Poole; if she reverted to more feminine attire, they reverted to it also. Where she drove, they followed; and I must confess that, as yet, Anonyma has fairly distanced her fair competitors. They can none of them sit, dress, drive or look as well as she does; nor can any of them procure for money such ponies as Anonyma contrives to get for leve.

"But the result of all this pretty play causes a great public nuisance, and it is on that account. and not at all on account of my admiration for Anonyma and her stepping ponies, that I now

"I have said that up to the beginning of last year the fashionable world chiefly affected the ladies' mile in the Park, and that the thoroughfare from Apsley House to Kensington was ma. But this year, when that road is more especially required to be kept open for the convenience of visitors to the Exhibition, it is daily choked with fashionable carriages-from five to seven-all on account of Anonyma. Chairs are placed along it on either side; the best partes that England knows, the todies who cling to them, the snobs who copy themall sit there, watching for Anonyma. "At about 6 p. m. a rumor arises that Anon-yma is coming; expectation is raised to its highest pitch; a handsome woman drives rapidly by, in a carriage drawn by thoroughbred ponies of surpassing shape and action; the driver is attired in the pork-pie hat and the Poole paletot introduced by Anonyma; but, alas! she causes no effect at all, for she is not Anonyma; she is only the Duchess of Athe Marchioness of B-, the Countess of C---, or some other of Anonyma's eager imitators. The crowd, disappointed, reseat them-selves and wait. Another pony carriage suc-ceeds—and another—with the same depressing result. At last their patience is rewarded. Anonyma and her ponies appear, and they are satisfied. She threads her way dexterously, with an unconscious air, through the throng commented upon by hundreds who admire and hundreds who envy her. She pulls up her ponies to speak to an acquaintance, and her carriage is instantly surrounded by a multitude; she turns and drives back again towards Apsley House, and then-away into the unknown world, nobody knows whither. Meantime, thousands returning from the exhibition are intolerably delayed by the crowd collected to gaze on this pretty creature and her pretty ponies, and the efforts of Sir Richard Mayne and his police to keep the thoroughfare open are utterly frustrated.

"Could not you, sir, whose business it is to know everything and everybody, and who possibly, therefore, may know Anonyma herself, prevail on her to drive in some other portion of the Park as long as the exhibition lasts? If she will but consent to this the fashionable crowd will certainly follow her, and the road to the exhibition will be set free for the use of the public.

"I am, sir, your obedient servant, H." When we met with this, the other day, we supposed it was an allegorical performance, and we began to puzzle ourselves to find out who could be this Anonyma of nations, or perhaps politics, who was raising such a dust. We now learn that the article is a sketch from life of a fashionable demirep, who, backed up by a loose nobility and their imitators, the wealthy rouss of the West end, has turned the heads of even the most quiet Londoners The British aristocracy, in all the reigns within a hundred and fifty years past, have been much devoted to this sort of people. Even royalty has amused itself after the same manner, and has left many sciens to perpetuate the private tastes of the sovereigns from generation to generation. The bar sinister is one of the most useful found upon the escutcheons of certain nobles. But we had supposed that in the reign of the wisest and most virtuous of queens such a scene as that of which Anonyma is the principle figure could not have been acted in England, or have had so large an audience.— Nor did we suppose, either, that so knightly a journal as the Times would have lowered its lance to such a woman. But it does, and we may conclude that, while its chief business has been to abuse the republicans of the North for exposing the indecency and licentiousness of the slaveocracy of the South, it is perfectly consistent in recording the conduct of the British aristocracy when they throng Hyde Park to give their plaudits to and express their admiration for a modern Lais with a ribald tongue .- IV. GENERAL CAMERON IN RUSSIA .- From private

During this interview the Russian Monarch evinced his knowledge of our system of government, and his admiration for the success we had made in the development of the vast extent of territory now within the jurisdiction of the Federal authority. That authority, in the opinion of the Emperor, should be maintained at all hazards. If the Great Republic of the West was broken down, and ceased to wield an influence, the course of empire and civilization would be changed, and a continent destined by God for the happy homes of millions of free, intelligent people. would be given to infidelity and barbar-ism, ruin and desolation.

After such expressions to the American Minister, there can be no mistaking the cordial feeling and hearty sympathy of the Emperor of Russia, nor can there be any misapprehension concerning the deep interest he manifests in the success and destiny of the United States. This feeling was reciprocated by Mr. Cameron, who had the most flattering assurances to offer that the interest of the American people was no less sincere in their solicitude for the success and mighty progress of the Colossal Empire of the North. Representing such widely different systems, and governed by authority so distinct and broad, there is still no reason why Russia and the United States should not be united in true and stern alliance, and wield an irresistable influence on the destinies of

We are gratified to add that the health of Gen. Cameron and that of his family was never better.

The imports of the country for the past fiscal year show a decrease in dry goods of $15,-000,000, $12,000,000 in general merchandise, and $22,000,000 in specie. The decrease in imports, as compared with 1860-'61, is $30,500,000. The exports are greater than in 1860-'61, exclusive of specie, $7,000,000, and $54,000,000 in excess of '59 and '80. The heavy shipments of specie cannot, therefore, be attributed to the large amount of

There is no thought of General McClellan being superseded, although there is some talk in he northern papers of it. Either Generals Melgs or Halleck will be Commander-in-Chief. When the President was here General McClellan recommended and urged such an appointment, but told the President not to allow his claims to interfere with his action in the matter. There are several thousand men here unable to do duty, although the health of the army has im-

Young men and others who have injured themselves by a certain practice indulged in when alone—a habit frequently learned from evil companions, or at school, the effects of which are nightly felt even when asiers, and if not cured, renders marriage impossible, and destroys both mind and body, should apply immediately.

These are some of the sad and melancholy effects produced by early habits of youth, viz: Weshness of the Back and Limbs, Pains in the Head. Dimness of Sight, Loss of Muscular Power, Palpitation of the Heat, Dyspepsy, Nervous Irritability, Derangement of the Dysestive Functions, Seneral Debility, Symptons of Consumption. &c.

MENTALLY.—The fearful effects on the mind are much to be dreaded—Loss of Memory, Confusion of Ideas, Depression of Spirits, Evil Forebodings, Aversion of Society, Self-Distrast, Love of Bolitade. Timidity, etc., are some of the evils produced.

NERVOUS DEBILITY.—Thousands can now judge TAKE PARTICULAR NOTICE.

NERVOUS DEBILITY.—Thousands can now judge what is the cause of their declining health. losing their vigor, becoming weak, pale, nervous and emaciated, having a singular appearance about the eyes, cough or symptons of consumption.

When the misguided and imprudent votary of pleasure finds he has imbiled the seeds of this painful disease, it too often happens that an ill-timed sense of shame or dread of discovery deters him from applying to those who, from education and respectability, can alone befriend him. He falls into the hands of ignorant and dealgring pretenders, who, incapable of curing, fisch his pecuniary substance, keep him trifling month after month, or as long as the smallest fee can be obtained, and in despair leave him with ruined health to sigh over his galling disappointement; or by the use of that deadly poison—Meroury—hasten the constitutional symptoms of this terrible disease, such as Affection of the Heart, Throat, Head, Skin, &c., progressing with frightful rapidity, till death puts a period to his dreadful sufferings by conding him to that undiscovered country from whose bourne ne traveler returns. DISEASES OF IMPRUDENCE.

DR. JOHNSTON'S REMEDY FOR ORGAN-IC WEAKNESS AND IMPOTENCY. By this great and important remedy weakness of the organs are speedily cured and full vigor re-stored. Thousands of the most nervous and de-bilitated, who had lost all hope, have been immedistely relieved.

All impediments to Marriage, Physical or Mental Disqualifications, Loss of Procreative Power, Nervous Irritability, Trembling, Weakness of Exhaustion of the most fearful kind speedily oured ENDORSEMENT OF THE PRESS. THE MANY THOUSANDS oured at this institution Within the last seventeen years, and the numerous important Surgical operations performed by Dr. Joanston, witnessed by the reporters of papers and many other persons, notices of which have appeared again and again before the public, besides his standing as a gentleman of character and responsibility, is a sufficient guarantee to the affilicted.

always successful as a preventive

The above Pills have now been in use for over thirty years, and in no case, where the directions have been correctly followed, have these pills falled to give most decided satisfaction. Read the following certificate from one of the first ladies of Utica, N. Y., who called upon my agents in that city, (Mr Wm. Bristol & Co.) and told them that she of course did not wish her name to be made public, but if any one should doubt the wonderful officacy of Dr. Duponco's Golden Pills, they might refer any lady to her, as she considered it a duty as well as pleasure to relate har knowledge of their efficacy, as administered to her daugnter, a young lady 17 years old. She was fast going into Consumption—had taken cold—nature became obstructed. Two boxes of these Golden Pills entirely cared her, and she is now in robust health.
